OUTLOOK BRIGHT K. L. HATCH TELLS FIELD DAY CROWD

SAYS INDICATIONS POINT TO STRONG DEMAND AND GOOD PRICES FOR FARM AND DAIRY PRODUCTS

A bright outlook for both the dairy and general farmer was forecast by Prof. K. L. Hatch in his address at the Wood and Taylor county field day at the Marshfield Experiment station yesterday morning. The field day was attended by over 1,000 farmers, a large percentage of whom were from Wood county.

Professor Hatch analyzed the situation as it exists at present both in regard to cheese and other dairy products and small grains.

Good Demand Assured

With the heaviest part of the milking season over," he said, "cheese warehouses are only half full of good cheese, selling at about 17 cents. Contrasting this with the situation a year ago, when the warehouses were filled to overflowing with cheap 12 cent cheese, it is obvious that dairy farmers and cheese makers are assured this year of a good demand and a fair price for the products.

The situation in regard to grains is also favorable, Mr. Hatch asserted, and farmers in general may expect to receive good prices for crops of all sorts.

Condensery Situation Dubious

The only pessimistic note sounded was in regard to the condensery business, which is not as good as it might be. Many Wisconsin condenseries are now lying idle, while others are having difficulty in finding adequate markets for their products.

The afternoon was largely devoted to demonstrations of various sorts. Methods of handling poultry and livestock were shown and groups of farmers were taken over the various experimental plots at the Marshfield station and shown at first hand the most successful methods of producing various crops.

Suitable For Pea Canning

Experiments have shown the Colby silt loam soil, which extends from Taylor county down through Marathon and Clark into northern and central Wood county to be particularly well adapted to the growing of peas for canning purposes, and it is expected that considerable attention will be paid to this branch of agriculture in the future.

Kellner Association Has Plans For Picnic And Fair

Plans for a community picnic and fair August 24 were made at a meeting last night of the Kellner Potato and Soy Beans Growers Association. The proposed tour of Wood County farmers to the Hancock Experiment field day July 25 was also discussed, and many of the 200 or more present at the meeting voiced their desire to go.

No definite program for the picnic and fair was decided upon, but three committees were appointed to take care of all preliminary preparations. G. H. Monroe was named chairman of the committee on entertainments, John Yetter of the grounds committee, and R. Timm of the refreshments committee.

S. G. Corey of the Wood County agricultural school will conduct poultry demonstrations at the fair, and there will also be stock judging demonstrations and contests. Prizes will be awarded for the best displays of agricultural products.

Wood County Farmers To Attend Hancock Field Day

A large delegation of farmers from southern and eastern Wood county have already signified their intention of taking part in the Wood county tour to the light soils field day at the Hancock Experiment Station, July 25. County Agent R. A. Peterson, who is organizing the tour, says that the field day will offer an exceptional opportunity for the light soils farmer to become acquainted with methods that have been found very successful on sandy soils.

The Wood county farmers are planning to meet at Kellner at 8 a. m. the day of the trip, and proceed in a body to Hancock.

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis. July p2.—Governor J. J. Blaine directed Winifred C. Zatel, district attorney of Milwaukee county to take appeal in the case of the State vs. Glenway Maxon, Jr. from the order of the court, placing the defendant on probation.

Whether or not the court had authority to change the execution of the sentence of five years in the Green Bay reformatory to probation should be determined by the supreme court, the governor said in the letter to the district attorney.

Wisconsin Rapids People Accustomed To Women In Knickers; Don't Notice 'em

Who would have prophesied about ten months ago that women clad in knickerbocker suits on the streets of Wisconsin Rapids would be passed by without even so much as a second glance? That happens to be the case today for, a comely woman, evidently the mother of a small child just able to toddle along, was seen walking down the main business streets of the city without creating any more of sensation than any other mother and child.

The Tourist Do It?

Someone was heard to remark on the street a few days ago, when two women appeared in knickers as unconcerned as could be, were going about their shopping in the downtown district and no one seemed to notice whether they were knickers or skirts. The fad is evidently here to stay for among tourists in increasing numbers, women are noticed to be dressed in knickers and if the women of this city are going to keep up to style they will have to wear them more often.

Selling More Every Day

Local stores selling knicker suits for women agree that knickers, which are now seen very frequently on eastern city streets will be very common in this city.

It is said in business circles in this city that women will wear knickers more than will men, even though men wear them as golf outfits. Men say they feel conspicuous in knickers while one woman who was interviewed by the Tribune says she does not feel at all conspicious.

The question now is will a man who plays golf in knickers and happens to step out in the street in such attire provoke more snickering among the populace of this city than a woman walking down the street pushing her child's perambulator and doing her daily shopping.

Maxion, a prominent young Milwaukee society man, was convicted five years in the Green Bay reformatory, following the death of Frank Fehlinger who was struck down and almost instantly killed by a car driven by Maxon December 22, 1920. Maxon was intoxicated at the time. Appeal was taken to the state supreme vcourt, which upheld the sentence.

Last Wednesday, Judge A. H. Reid of Wausau, sitting in municipal court in Milwaukee, directed that Maxon be placed on probation for the period of his five year sentence, the conditions being that during that time he neither touch intoxicating liquor or drive an automobile for pleasure.

Lenroot Leads Fight On Tariff Bill Wool Schedule

(By Associated Press)

Washington, July 22—The Senate came today to the major battle ground in the administration's tariff bill—the wool schedule. This schedule is expected to be the subject of sharp attacks from both sides of the chamber.

Senator Lenroot, Republican of Wisconsin, who led a successful onslaught upon the cotton schedule, was prepared for an even more vigorous fight on the wool rates. The democrats have marshalled their forces and were prepared for a fresh encounter.

Wisconsin Rapids People Accustomed To Women In Knickers; Don't Notice 'em

Who would have prophesied about ten months ago that women clad in knickerbocker suits on the streets of Wisconsin Rapids would be passed by without even so much as a second glance? That happens to be the case today for, a comely woman, evidently the mother of a small child just able to toddle along, was seen walking down the main busines streets of the city without creating any more of sensation than any other mother and child.

The Tourist Do It?

Someone was heard to remark on the street a few days ago, when two women apperyed in knickers as unconcerned as could be, were going about their shopping in the downtown district and no one seemed to notice whether they were knickers or skirts. The fad is evidently here to stay for among tourists in increasing numbers, women are noticed to be dressed in knickers and if the women of this city are going to keep up to style they will have to wear them more often.

Selling More Every Day

Local stores selling knicker suits for women agree that knickers, which are now seen very frequently on eastern city streets will be very common in this city.

It is said in business circles in this city that women will wear knickers more than will men, even though men wear them as golf outfits. Men say they feel conspicuous in knickers while one woman who was interviewed by the Tribune says she does not feel at all conspicious.

The question now is will a man who plays golf in knickers and happens to step out in the street in such attire provoke more snickering among the populace of this city than a woman walking down the street pushing her child's perambulator and doing her daily shopping.

MEXICO AND THE U. S.

The fact that there are forces both in Mexico and in this country who would like to see the Obregon government discredited and intervention by America a reality must be taken into consideration in connection with the recent kidnapping of American in Mexico. The suddenness with which Mexican banditry and kidnapping have broken out in the Tampico oil field with activities wholly against Americans, raises the suspicion that the motive back of the attack may be political rather than merely for ransome money. In refusing to become excited the Washington administration has taken the attitude a great majority of Americans favor.

Obregon may not be an ideal president, but it stands out that Mexico has been quieter under his administration than for years. If Obregon makes a sincere and able effort to prevent harm to the Americans kidnapped and to punish the bandits it would be difficult to see where the interventionists could gain anything by this latest outbreak. Rather it ought to rague much for recognition of the Mexican government. When we reflect upon the recent wholesale murders at Herrin, Ill., and with but little done toward apprehending the murderers, we should not be too hasty in ruling the Obregon government out of consideration.

RED TAPE VS. TWINE

During the Wilson administration Washington became known as "the city of endless red tape." To divorce it from this unenviable reputation was one of the biggest tasks faced by the Harding administration. But it has been accomplished. To the postoffice department goes the credit.

Twine used by the postoffice department now totals 800,000 miles a year, eclipsing the mileage record set by red tape in the Democratic administration's halcyon days. Nor is the government's newly-acquired reputation as a gobbler of twine likely to be lost soon.

Not only is enough twine consumed annually by the postoffice department to reach around the earth 30 times at the equator, but after the globe has been securely tied in that manner there will be sufficient left to anchor Pike's Peak to Washington with a 10 twine strand strung from Washington to Colorado by way of Marion, O., and looping in Orlando, Florida, on the return to the capital.

A few more Herrins and recognition of soviet Russia by this country would be entirely appropriate.

That not everyone reads the divorce news is indicated by the feminist who advocates "temporary wifehood."

The federal government is keeping well within its income. Many would like to know the recipe.

Your Washing Done

as you would do it

When you send your washing to us, it is handled just as carefully and as conscientiously as you yourself would care for it in your own home.

The clothes are washed in rainsoft water, with pure, neutral soap, rinsed in many more changes of soft water, dried in gentle breezes of warm air, and finished on ironers that conserve clothes life.

Then everything is returned to you as beautifully finished, and as faultlessly ironed as the first day it came from the shops.

You not only enjoy greater convenience —no washing in the house, no drudgery or upset—but at the same time you save money. It costs less to have your clothes done by us than to employ a laundress.

SCARAMOUCHE

by Rafael Sabatini

In the background, on a settee at the salon's far end, sat Aline staring in bewilderment and some fear at a face which, if unrecognizable through the mask of blood and dust that smeared it, was yet familiar. And then the man spoke, and instantly she knew the voice for that of the Marquis de La Tour d'Azyr.

"In danger?" Almost he seemed silently to laugh at the unnecessary question. "If I were to show myself openly in the streets just now, I might with luck contrive to live for five minutes!"

He peeled off the shaggy great-coat, and casting it from him stepped forth in the black satin that had been the general livery of the hundred knights who had rallied in the Tuileries that morning to the defense of their king.

His coat was rent across the back, his neckcloth and the ruffles at his wrists were torn and blood-stained; with his smeared face and disordered headdress he was terrible to behold.

"My dear Therese, unless you carry charitableness to the length of giving me to drink, you will see me perish of thirst under your eyes before ever the canaille has a chance to finish me."

She started. "I should have thought of it!" she cried in self-reproach, and she turned quickly.

"Aline!" he echoed, interrupting. "Aline" she begged," tell Jacques to bring . . ."

and swinging round in his turn. Then, as Aline rose into view, detached from her background, and he at last perceived her, he heaved himself abruptly to his weary legs again, and stood there stiffly, bowing her across the space of gleaming floor. "Mademoiselle, I had not suspected your presence," he said, and he seemed extraordinarily ill-at-ease, a man startled, as if caught in an illeic act.

"I perceived it, monsieur," she answered, as she advanced to do madame's commission. She paused before him. "From my heart, monsieur, I grieve that we should meet again in circumstances so very painful."

Not since the day of his duel with Andre-Louis—the day which had seen the death and burial of his last hope of winning her—had they stood face to face.

"But sit, monsieur, I beg. You are fatigued."

"You are gracious to observe it. With your permission, then." And he resumed his seat. She continued on her way to the door and passed out upon her errand.

M. de La Tour d'Azyr at last pleaded weariness, and withdrew that he might endeavor to take some rest. When he had gone, madame persuaded Aline to go and lie down.

Left alone, madame lay down on a couch in the salon itself, to be ready for any emergency.

The timepiece on the overmantel chimed the hour of ten, and then, startling in the suddenness with which it broke the immediate silence, another sound vibrated through the house, and brought madame to her feet, in a breathless mingling of hope and dread. Someone was knocking sharply on the door below. Followed moments of agonized suspense, culminating in the abrupt invasion of the room by the footman Jacques. He looked round, not seeing his mistress at first.

"Madame! Madame!" he panted, out of breath. "There is a man below. He is demanding to see you at once."

She was perfectly composed. "Conduct him to me, and then beg Mlle. de Kercadiou to join me if she is awake."

The door opened again, and Jacques reappeared: after him, stepping briskly past him, came a slight man in a wide-brimmed hat, adorned by a tricolor cockade. About the waist of an olive-green riding-coat he wore a broad tricolor sash: a sword hung at his side.

"Andre-Louis!" she exclaimed.

CHAPTER XII

That gift of laughter of his seemed utterly extinguished. "Rougane could not return," he informed her shortly. "At M. de Kercadiou's request, I come instead."

"You! You are sent to rescue us!"

The note of amazement in her voice was stronger than that of her relief.

"That, and to make your acquaintance, madame."

"To make my acquaintance? But what do you mean, Andre-Louis?"

"This letter from M. de Kercadiou will tell you."

Intrigued by his odd words and odder manner, she took the folded sheet. She broke the seal with shaking hands, and with shaking hands approached the written page to the light.

"And so you know, my child?" Her voice was stifled to a whisper.

"I know, madame my mother."

She took one or two faltering steps toward him, hesitating. Then she opened her arms. Sobs suffocated her voice.

"Won't you come to me, Andre-Louis?"

A moment yet he stood hesitating startled by that appeal, angered almost by his heart's response to it, reason and sentiment at grips in his soul. This was not real, his reason expostulated: this poignant emotion that she displayed and that he experienced was fantastic. Yet he went. Her arms enfolded him; her wet cheek was pressed hard against his own; her frame, which the years had not yet succeeded in robbing of its grace, was shaken by the passionate storm within her.

"Oh, Andre-Louis, my child, if you knew how I have hungered to hold you so! If you knew how, in denying myself this, I have atoned and suffered! Kercadiou should not have told you—not even now. It was wrong—most wrong, perhaps, to you. And yet—come what may of this—to be able to hold you so, to be able to acknowledge you, to hear you call me mother—oh! Andre-Louis, I cannot now regret it. I cannot . . . I cannot wish it otherwise."

She sprang away from him with a startled cry. Beyond him in the shadows by the door a pale figure shimmered ghostly.

"You heard, Aline?" madame exclaimed.

"I could not help it madame."

"Aline!" It was the Countess who spoke. She knew the danger of half-discoveries. "I can trust you, child I know, and Andre-Louis, I am sure, will offer no objection." She had taken up the letter to show it to Aline. Yet first her eyes questioned him.

"Oh, none, madame," he assured her. "It is entirely a matter for yourself."

Aline looked from one to the other with trouble eyes, hesitating to take the letter that was now proffered. When she had read it through, she very thoughtfully replaced it on the table. Then impulsively she ran to madame and put her arms about her.

"Aline!" It was a cry of wonder, almost of joy. "You do not utterly abhor me!"

"My dear" said Aline, and kissed the tear-strained face that seemed to have grown years older in the [illegible] few hours.

In the background Andre-Louis, steeling himself against emotionalism, spoke with the voice of Scaramouche.

"It would be well, mesdames, to postpone all transports until they can be indulged at greater leisure and in more security. It is growing late. If we are to get out of this shambles we should be wise to take the road without more delay."

It was a tonic as effective as it was necessary. It started them into remembrance of their circumstances, and under the spur of it they went at once to make their preparations.

They left him for perhaps a quarter of an hour, to pace that long room alone, saved only from impatience by the turmoil of his mind. When at length they returned, they were accompanied by a tall man in a full-skirted shaggy greatcoat and a broad hat, the brim of which was turned down all around. He remained respectfully by the door in the shadows.

Between them the two women had concerted it thus, or rather the Countess had so concerted it when Aline had warned her that Andre-Louis' bitter hostility toward the Marquis made it unthinkable that he should move a finger consciously to save him.

They had made the mistake of not fully forewarning and persuading M. de La Tour d'Azyr.

They had reckoned without the [illegible]

Who's Who In Wisconsin Rapids

The Who's Who column will be run each Saturday in the Wisconsin Rapids Daily Tribune. It will include a brief sketch of the life of citizens who have helped make history for Wisconsin Rapids.

W. J. Taylor

W. J. TAYLOR

W. J. Taylor, Wisconsin Rapids banker and business man, was born at Depere, Wis., on May 8, 1889, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Taylor. The family moved to Green Bay while Mr. Taylor was still a lad and he entered in the Green Bay public schools and later in the East High School of Green Bay where he finished his education. The mother died while he was still a young boy while the father still lives in Green Bay. School in those days held little attraction for this "peppy" lad and the yearning for a chance to get on an independent financial basis appealed strongly. He left high school near his graduation and entered the employ of the McCartney National Bank of Green Bay to learn the groundwork of a business which he has been destined to follow and later to become a leader.

Was Bank Messenger

The first job he was given in the McCartney bank was that of messenger. "Plenty of leg work and little pay" is Mr. Taylor's accurate description of the first job he ever had. The messenger work was pretty well handled by Mr. Taylor, which lead his employers to believe that he could do more responsible work and because he showed an aptitude to figures he was promoted to a combination of messenger and bookkeeper and later to bookkeeper. He remained four years on that work. The confinement of the counting house was too much for him and he decided to go on the road where travel and people offered a more interesting life. About that time the Baker-Vawter Co. was looking for a likely young chap who could sell and install bank systems and he was engaged to work in Georgia and Florida, making a big success.

Tried Newspaper Work

After two years in the south, Mr. Taylor's elder brother, Frank J. Taylor who was starting on his career of the leading journalist of St. Louis, persuaded the younger brother to go to St. Louis to work on the Star. Realizing the possibilities for experience in newspaper work, Mr. Taylor went there and remained in the employ of the Star for nearly two years. A telegram came one day from Green Bay saying that there was an opening in the Citizen's National Bank of Green Bay for an auditor. The position looked like a real opportunity and he decided to accept. He remained there for a year and a half. Soon other opportunities offered chances for him and he elected to accept the opening of assistant cashier of the State Bank of Kiel, Wisconsin, where two years later he was promoted to the position of cashier, which position he held until coming here nearly three years ago.

Became Cashier Here

Mr. Taylor was elected to the position of cashier of the First National Bank of this city about three years ago. He moved here with his family and they took up residence on Belle Isle. When the Bank of Grand Rapids was merged with the First National Bank, Mr. Taylor ably handled the big transaction and became the cashier of the merged institution. His leadership in the banking business, although a young man in the point of service, was quite recently recognized when the Group Six of the Wisconsin Bankers Ass'n. elected him to the presidency.

Well Known Here

Although a comparative newcomer in this city, Mr. Taylor has made a host of friends here in his business capacity and through his various activities as he has taken a prominent and responsible part in community affairs. The banking business, with its high ethical requirements, has not changed the personality of Mr. Taylor as he is regarded as one of the most democratic business men here. He is known to a larger circle of people as Bill Taylor or Will Taylor than as Mr. Taylor. He is a member of several lodges and organizations including Masonic lodge, Commandry of the order, Elks Rotary Club, of which he is vice president and director and is secretary-treasurer of Bull's-Eye Country Club. He is also a director in the Building & Loan Ass'n and is secretary and treasurer of the Wisconsin Rapids Sand & Gravel Co.

Has Three Children

Goodrich

announces

new tire prices

—lowest cost mileage ever known

Effective July 20th, Goodrich establishes a revised price list that is a base line of tire value. It gives the motorist the buying advantage of knowing that whatever size tire he selects is of the same quality—the Goodrich one-quality standard. It gives him the longest mileage, the most satisfactory service and the highest quality his money can buy. Results will prove that it is impossible to buy tire mileage at lower cost.

Who's Who In Wisconsin Rapids

The Who's Who column will be run each Saturday in the Wisconsin Rapids Daily Tribune. It will include a brief sketch of the life of citizens who have helped make history for Wisconsin Rapids.

W. J. Taylor

W. J. TAYLOR

W. J. Taylor, Wisconsin Rapids banker and business man, was born at Depere, Wis., on May 8, 1889, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Taylor. The family moved to Green Bay while Mr. Taylor was still a lad and he entered in the Green Bay public schools and later in the East High School of Green Bay where he finished his education. The mother died while he was still a young boy while the father still lives in Green Bay. School in those days held little attraction for this "peppy" lad and the yearning for a chance to get on an independent financial basis appealed strongly. He left high school near his graduation and entered the employ of the McCartney National Bank of Green Bay to learn the groundwork of a business which he has been destined to follow and later to become a leader.

Was Bank Messenger

The first job he was given in the McCartney bank was that of messenger. "Plenty of leg work and little pay" is Mr. Taylor's accurate description of the first job he ever had. The messenger work was pretty well handled by Mr. Taylor, which lead his employers to believe that he could do more responsible work and because he showed an aptitude to figures he was promoted to a combination of messenger and bookkeeper and later to bookkeeper. He remained four years on that work. The confinement of the counting house was too much for him and he decided to go on the road where travel and people offered a more interesting life. About that time the Baker-Vawter Co. was looking for a likely young chap who could sell and install bank systems and he was engaged to work in Georgia and Florida, making a big success.

Tried Newspaper Work

After two years in the south, Mr. Taylor's elder brother, Frank J. Taylor who was starting on his career of the leading journalist of St. Louis, persuaded the younger brother to go to St. Louis to work on the Star. Realizing the possibilities for experience in newspaper work, Mr. Taylor went there and remained in the employ of the Star for nearly two years. A telegram came one day from Green Bay saying that there was an opening in the Citizen's National Bank of Green Bay for an auditor. The position looked like a real opportunity and he decided to accept. He remained there for a year and a half. Soon other opportunities offered chances for him and he elected to accept the opening of assistant cashier of the State Bank of Kiel, Wisconsin, where two years later he was promoted to the position of cashier, which position he held until coming here nearly three years ago.

Became Cashier Here

Mr. Taylor was elected to the position of cashier of the First National Bank of this city about three years ago. He moved here with his family and they took up residence on Belle Isle. When the Bank of Grand Rapids was merged with the First National Bank, Mr. Taylor ably handled the big transaction and became the cashier of the merged institution. His leadership in the banking business, although a young man in the point of service, was quite recently recognized when the Group Six of the Wisconsin Bankers Ass'n. elected him to the presidency.

Well Known Here

Although a comparative newcomer in this city, Mr. Taylor has made a host of friends here in his business capacity and through his various activities as he has taken a prominent and responsible part in community affairs. The banking business, with its high ethical requirements, has not changed the personality of Mr. Taylor as he is regarded as one of the most democratic business men here. He is known to a larger circle of people as Bill Taylor or Will Taylor than as Mr. Taylor. He is a member of several lodges and organizations including Masonic lodge, Commandry of the order, Elks Rotary Club, of which he is vice president and director and is secretary-treasurer of Bull's-Eye Country Club. He is also a director in the Building & Loan Ass'n and is secretary and treasurer of the Wisconsin Rapids Sand & Gravel Co.

Has Three Children

Mr. Taylor was married while he was a resident of Kiel to Miss Carmen Getzloe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Getzloe of Manitowoc. They have three children, Jane, Bill Jr. and Rosemary. Mr. Taylor is devoted to his family and when asked what his hobbies are said "The family and golf and in summer it is almost a question of which comes first." All people who have known Mr. Taylor agree that the city made a very valuable acquisition when he decided to come with his family to Wisconsin Rapids.

Give Your Eyes New Youth

Wearing glasses is not an indication of age—the youngest child you meet may be wearing them.

On the contrary, 'crow's feet', squinting, blinking and rubbing your eyes are a well defined indication of eye trouble which sooner or later will leave the mark of age upon the countenance.

If your eyes trouble you let us give you a scientific examination to determine what is wrong.

Buick Takes Care of Buick Owners

Buick responsibility does not end with the sale of a Buick car. It follows the car throughout its entire life.

That is why Buick has organized a nation-wide authorized Buick service that extends to practically every city, town and village in the United States.

Buick owners do not need service often. But they have the comfortable feeling of knowing that they can always be supplied with genuine Buick parts and have their work done by Buick-trained mechanics wherever they may happen to be.

Costs More—Yes! But Think What You Get For Your Money

When you need a new suit or shirt, the lure of low first cost doesn't make shoddies and seconds look good to you. You insist on having the quality that means real value and satisfactory service.

Why be less particular about gasoline? Why buy gallons, regardless of goodness, or accept cracked, kerosene-laden, casing head mixture gas just for the sake of keeping a few more cents in your pocketbook?

TY COBB GAINING FAST ON SISLER IN BATTING RACE

DETROIT LEADER NARROWS GAP BETWEEN HIMSELF AND LEAGUE LEADERSHIP TO 11 POINTS

Chicago, July 22—(By the Associated Press)—Pethaps Tyrus Raymond Cobb is convinced, in his own mind that he is "slowing up" after seventeen years as a star in the American league, but George Sisler, the marvel player with St. Louis, whose batting honors Cobb is threatening today, is positive the "Georgia Peach" will be his most dangerous rival for the 1922 batting championship.

The race between Cobb and Sisler today is narrowed down to a difference of only eleven points, with Sisler setting the pace with an average of .416, a drop of four points within a week. Cobb, continuing his batting rampage, smashed out nine hits in his last five games, bringing his average to .405, while the best Sisler could do was four in as many games.

Sisler Boosts Theft Record

Sisler, however, is showing his worth in base stealing and scoring, having registered seventy-nine times and stolen thirty-four bases—the best base stealing performance in the major leagues.

Clarence "Tillie" Walker, the slugging outfielder with philadelphia is having a hard time catching Rogers Hornsby, the National League home run leader. Just when Tillie poles a circuit drive, Hornsby bags one for himself. Tillie smashed two out in one game and ran his string up to twenty-three, which gave him a lead of two ahead of Ken Williams, of St. Louis. Harry Heilman of Detroit has sixteen poled and Babe Ruth has fifteen.

Other leading batters for fifty-five or more games: Speaker, Cleveland .365; Schang, New York .360; Heilmann, Detroit, .356; Meusel, New York .348; Bassler, Detroit .347; Edw. Miller, Philadelphia .347; Tobin, St. Louis .342; O'Neill, Cleveland .339.

Daubert Hitting Hard

A recruit and a veteran are giving National Leagues something to talk about this week. The recruit is Lawrence "Hack" Miller, the Pacific Coast slugger with Chicago and the veteran is Jake Daubert, first baseman with Cincinnati. They have been wielding the hickory with telling effect, each cracking out a dozen hits in their last seven games. Daubert's hitting included two doubles.

The Cincinnati veteran brought his average from .355 up to .371 and is the runner-up to Rogers Hornsby, the St. Louis star, who tops the list with a mark of .397. Miller added ten points to his average and moved up among the select ten, his percentage being .350.

Hornsby Still Tops

Hornsby's keen eye and hitting prowess keeps him out in front among the major league home run clouters, with a string of twenty-five for the season.

Attraction

No entry in the recent bicycle races at Milwaukee attracted more attention than Miss Marion Wilkins on an old-fashioned high-wheeler.

Max Carey, the speedy outfielder of the Pirates, in addition to showing the way to the base stealers with 21 thefts, is out in front as a run getter having registered 76 times.

Other leading batters for fifty-five or more games: Cowdy, Boston .370; Hollocher, Chicago .366; Grimes, Chicago .363; Snyder, New York .363; Bigbee, Pittsburg .362; J. Johnston, Brooklyn .357; H. Griffith, Brooklyn .351; J. Miller, Chicago .350.

Brown Heads Association

Eddie Brown, star outfielder with Indianapolis, by pounding out thirteen hits in his last six games, deposed Jay Kirke of Louisville as the batting leader of the American Association, according to averages today which include games of Wednesday.

Brown is leading the race with a mark of .378, with Kirke second with .371. Myatt of Milwaukee is resting in third place with .372. "Reb" Russell, the outfielder Minneapolis sold to Pittsburg, is going back to the major leagues with a fat average. In seventy-seven games, he has made eighty-one hits, including seventeen homers, for an average of .321.

The home run hitters are trailing Bussy Brief of Kansas City, who is setting the pace with twenty-two. Matthews of Milwaukee jumped ahead of Brief of Indianapolis in the scramble for base stealing honors, going into the lead with nineteen, Baird has stolen sixteen.

Other leading batters for fifty-five or more games: Lear, Milwaukee .371; Gaed, Kansas City, .370; Mathews, Milwaukee .360; Combs, Louisville, .356; Lamar, Toledo, .354; Becker, Kansas City .344; Kruger, Indianapolis .339; Mayer, Minneapolis .337.
